Dear [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request for information, received on 13 November 2013. You asked us the following questions and I have set out below our response to each one of your questions following your order:

"I am sending you a request for a copy of the proposal that won London the 2012 games. It would also be very useful to get an idea of the strategy that that was used to secure the games.

If for some reason it is not possible to send this information in an email would it be possible to view it at your offices?

It would also be beneficial if it were possible to speak with someone who was involved in the bid to understand the process that won us the games."

London Legacy Development Corporation response:

Item 1 I am sending you a request for a copy of the proposal that won London the 2012 games. It would also be very useful to get an idea of the strategy that that was used to secure the games.

If for some reason it is not possible to send this information in an email would it be possible to view it at your offices?

The London Legacy Development Corporation (the Legacy Corporation) can confirm that we do hold this information; however, we have determined that the exemption from disclosure under section 21(1) of Freedom of Information Act is engaged. Section 21(1) provides that information which is reasonably accessible to the applicant is exempt information. It has been brought to our attention by the Greater London Authority (GLA) that an electronic copy of the requested information is available in the public domain (The National Archive).

Therefore, the Legacy Corporation is not obliged to release the information it holds; however, we advise that the information you request can be found at the following location:
<http://webarchive.nationalarchives.gov.uk/20070305103412/http://www.london2012.com/new/publications/candidate-file.php>

Item 2 It would also be beneficial if it were possible to speak with someone who was involved in the bid to understand the process that won us the games.

As previously discussed, I can confirm that our Director of Strategy and Business Planning has agreed to speak with you and you have consented to him having your contact information. The Director of Strategy and Business Planning will be in contact with you shortly.

If you are unhappy with our response to your request and wish to make a complaint or request a review of our decision, you should write to:

Executive Director of Finance and Corporate Services
London Legacy Development Corporation
