Dear [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request for information, received on 9 December 2013. You asked us the following questions:

"I would like to know the following:

- What was the allocated budget from the LLDC to the event production company for this good?*
- How much did the event company spend on the event, versus the allocated budget?*
- Did the event production company charge a flat fee (e.g. £20,000) a percentage of the total budget (e.g. 10% etc), charge a markup or a combination of the above?*
- Was a competitive tendering process undertaken to appoint the event company?*
- How long is the event company contracted for?"*

The London Legacy Development Corporation (the Legacy Corporation) response:

A contract of £240,000 value was awarded through competitive tender to Walthamstow based event production company Continental Drifts.

They were contracted to supply a series of nine cultural events of varying sizes on the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park between September and December 2013 within the set contact amount. The contract is now complete.

The costs of each element of the programme varied as to size and content. Continental Drifts were paid a 15% fee plus 5% administration charge to deliver the overall programme of events). The last event, A Very Vintage Christmas held on 6, 7, 8 December 2013, had a net cost of £60,152.20.
