We don't patrol the tow path, could this be from hackney bridge?

Would be handy to have some more detail on location as I'm not clear on that.

Hi Peter,

Yes he called yesterday, he said the timber was disposed of by our security. He said ID Verde admitted fault and the police said it's not a criminal matter in that case.

He would like to have the timber replaced as soon as possible as he lives in a house boat and it's started to get cold.

He can be reached on [REDACTED] s40 .

He phoned earlier this week and told LLDC Reception that the timber was disposed of by our security. He said Idverde admitted fault and the police said it's not a criminal matter in that case.

He would like to have the timber replaced by LLDC as soon as possible 'as he lives in a house boat and it's started to get cold.'

Would I be correct in writing to him as follows:

I am sorry that you were awaiting a response from us. My understanding was that my colleague s40 had spoken with you at the end of October to confirm that it was not LLDC personnel who had removed your items, and that he had advised you to follow up your report to the police as LLDC has no CCTV coverage on the towpaths in this area. Peter,
Idverde quite rightly removed the wood as fly tipped material and there have been several instances along the Canal Park where material is placed on our land and evidence of timber being cut up on our land. Perhaps we need to consider placing signs along our Canal Park boundary, asking houseboat residents not to place materials on our land and that any deposits will be promptly removed to our tip.

I can't see any 18metre or 8 metre lengths of timber in the photo? I would suggest that the timber value (as shown in photo) is no more than £30.

Just FYI at present, though thoughts welcome.

Summary

In mid-October a house boat resident complained that QEOP personnel had removed his timber from beneath Wallis Rd bridge. LLDC Security reported that this was not the case, which I conveyed to the resident, but it then emerged from the resident that Idverde had confirmed they had removed items and had disposed of them. However, Idverde's photo of the items (scrappy wood – see pic) possibly differs from the resident's description of 18mm and 8mm plyboards.

Detail

18/10 Helpline contacted by [REDACTED] s40 who lives on a Lea Navigation Houseboat near Wallis Road bridge. He claimed QEOP staff had removed timber from near the towpath that was his property and wanted it back. PT contacted by email. He stated that they were 18m and 8m plyboards and had been taken 'from Hackney Bridge' (probably meaning Wallis Road Bridge). As his account was still unclear he was asked to complete the standard Incident form.

- 26/10 Form returned to s40 (I was away) who sent it to s40 and s40
- 31/10 I asked for an update and s40 responded: 'I spoke to the gentleman and nothing further, he did report it to the Police so I advised that he follows this up with them as we don't have any CCTV in this area.'
- 28/11 s40 rang LLDC reception to complain that nothing had happened and asking for compensation. Stated to s40 that the timber was disposed of by our security. He said Idverde admitted fault and the police said it's not a criminal matter in that case. He would like to have the timber replaced by LLDC as soon as possible 'as he lives in a house boat and it's started to get cold.'
- 30/11 I agreed the following response with s40 and sent it to s40 I am sorry that you were awaiting a response from us. My understanding was that my colleague s40 had spoken with you at the end of October to confirm that it was not LLDC personnel who had removed your items, and that he had advised you to follow up your report to the police as LLDC has no CCTV coverage on the towpaths in this area. I am sorry that we cannot assist further. However, it then emerged that this was incorrect.
- 30/11 s40 responded that he had been in contact with s40 at Idverde who had confirmed that Idverde had removed the items and disposed of them being them to have been fly tipped. He pointed to the CCTV on the bridge and again requested compensation and complained of LLDC giving him the runaround. I contacted s40 who verified s40 has also contacted me a number of times. Our supervisor advised that one day in October they found a heap of wood, plastic bags etc near/under Wallis Bridge, the supervisor left a note on the pile to say it had been reported as fly tip by a member of the public and that it would need to be removed (team have had a number of conversations in the past with houseboat residents with regard to dumping mattresses , bbq's etc) when the team went back a couple of days later a smiley face was on the original note left and they assumed it had been acknowledged. A further note was left to say if not removed we would remove it on the Saturday. Team returned on Saturday and removed items. s40 also sent the attached photo of the items, which are different from the description s40 gave at the start; Idverde have confirmed that the wood in the picture is the only wood removed from site.
- 01/12 I replied to s40 apologising that I had been misinformed previously, and confirming the details received from Idverde that the items had been left in that location for at least four days, a note was left on the items by Idverde advising that they would be removed on the Saturday and as they had not been removed, the cleaning team disposed of them that day, as we would with any other waste items abandoned on the towpath, in order to ensure the route is clear for the pedestrians and cyclists who use it. No compensation will be provided as the items should not have been placed in the public area in the first place. Notice was provided that they would be removed if not claimed.
- 01/12 s40 responded agreeing that the items had been left, but stating that there a no note placed on the wood before it was removed. He states it was obvious they were new and large pieces of timber. Again requests compensation. Without giving you a sob story, I'm living in an incomplete boat and can't afford to replace these items.

02/12 I responded that the items were left for at least four days before being removed and there is no question of compensation being due for items that are left unattended on the Park. [REDACTED] s40 has requested our formal complaints policy and reckons he is seeking legal advice from Citizens Advice Bureau. The items were also not left for 4 days, they were left under the bridge whilst it was raining and were taken back and forth to my boat and also under the eaves of Hackney Bridge food court to set up for the workman. I've got CRT calling me back as I know that other boaters are annoyed about the removal of items; seasoned wood for burning, BBQ. The first of which I saw your team examining on the day it was removed. They will look into any potential breach of contract either between yourselves or in my license fee.

Next steps

- I will respond to [REDACTED] s40 later today with a link to the complaints process. Obviously we have no contract with [REDACTED] s40 and his account has changed over time so there are some inconsistencies.
- I'm aiming to establish whether the image sent to us is the same items [REDACTED] s40 referring to. I've asked Hackney Bridge if they have any record of the activity, but they say not. I'm obviously wary of offering to pay for the wood if it's unclear what the items were.

FYI

This is the gentleman who left items of wood under the H10 bridge for a number of days. I asked s40 to investigate and unfortunately he responded with the wrong information, and then it emerged that Idverde had removed and disposed of them having – they said- left a note on them saying the items would be removed.

He is making a claim for £400+ based on materials, van to transport etc.

Perhaps we can discuss.

Hi

s40 is now proceeding with a claim against LLDC for the unauthorised removal of his items.

I need to set up a call ASAP for an internal discussion on our response. Please can those representatives who were involved from Idverde attend? If you could suggest some slots Wed-Friday this week, I will arrange

Thanks

Hi Peter,

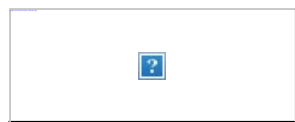

He told me last week that he had an appointment with Citizens Advice on Monday 28th November and that he would contact me after that, he didn't. He also told me that he had reported it to the police and they told him to resolve himself, no crime number provided.

I have just checked with the supervisor who removed the wood and he has again confirmed that the picture of the wood sent to you is the only wood removed from site.

I hope this helps.

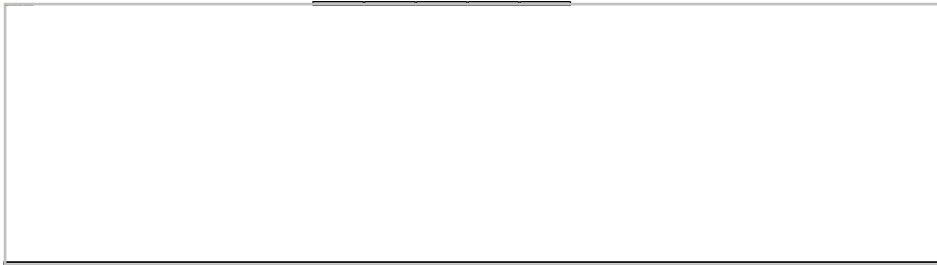

Kind regards

s40

Hi

This may escalate as he says he's now seeking legal advice, Citizens Advice Bureau etc.

He originally said the wood that had been removed was 18mm and 8mm plyboards. The photo you shared doesn't look like that. Are we sure we are talking about the same incident?

thanks

Hi, I have written to him today and told him that no compensation will be offered.

If he does get in touch again, please can you let s40 and myself know.

Hi

Looking back in my notes, s40 reported that he thought this referred to ISAR 830224. Is it possible to check that reference?

Having gone back through with ID yesterday, it seems clear that the wood that ID were referring to is not the timber that s40 sys was taken, as the dates and materials are different.

Talk later.
